In/SITE/Out, curated by Karen E. Jones, will address art practices that are situated outside of the traditional parameters of art spaces and that are concurrently exhibited or reflected within the architecture of the gallery space. The premise of this exhibition asserts that there is no longer a marked distinction between inside/outside, public space/private space, center/margin. Equally, the exhibition is determined by the sites in which the artists choose to locate their works, inspired by the Situationists' concept of the dérive. Thus, In/SITE/Out attempts to integrate art back into everyday life by expanding the context of the exhibition installation and viewing experience. Moreover, the artworks included interrogate how space is produced and how space may be altered by art practice. In/SITE/Out includes 12 artists from seven countries. There will be several site-specific projects located within public space by Brett Cook-Dizney, Ellen Harvey, Johannes Kahrs, Günther Selichar and Oona Stern. Rainer Ganahl will lead a Seminar Project throughout the duration of the exhibition. A map will be available to guide viewers to the OutSITE artworks.

A color brochure containing an essay by the curator will be available free of charge.
